

CORE SAMPLE

Temporary Exposure

Geological & Human Layers of London and the Elephant & Castle

Exhibition by Gail Dickerson

Special display by London Geodiversity Partnership

Poems by Barbara Cumbers & Anna Robinson

Newington Gallery
Former Cuming Museum
155 Walworth Road
London SE17 1RS

9th -18th November 2018
11am - 7pm

CORE SAMPLE PROJECT

An Art and Geology project focusing on the geology of London and the area of Elephant and Castle. It explores the Rockingham Street Anomaly, the Elephant Park building site, the fluvial deposits from the River Thames and the clay and chalk of the London Basin. Layers in the work are placed using collected sediments made into earth pigments, and temporary exposures on a building site are captured on film. London's strata is glimpsed through research and collaboration with the London Geodiversity Partnership.

A human layer is seen in the collaboration with the public to make drawings and thought fragments and also in the poems by poet and geologist Barbara Cumbers and poet and local historian Anna Robinson. The resulting book and exhibition is an exploration of the texture of a material, an experience, and a layering of human concepts of mapping and planning.

www.gaildickerson.com

CORE SAMPLE

TEMPORARY EXPOSURE

Geological & Human Layers of London and the Elephant & Castle

Exhibition by Gail Dickerson

Special display by London
Geodiversity Partnership

Poems by Barbara Cumbers
& Anna Robinson

Newington Gallery
Former Newington Library
155 Walworth Road
London SE17 1RS

9th -18th November 2018
11am - 7pm

CORE SAMPLE PROJECT

An Art and Geology project focusing on the geology of London and the area of Elephant and Castle. It explores the Rockingham Street Anomaly, the Elephant Park building site, the fluvial deposits from the River Thames and the clay and chalk of the London Basin. Layers in the work are placed using collected sediments made into earth pigments, and temporary exposures on a building site are captured on film. London's strata is glimpsed through research and collaboration with the London Geodiversity Partnership.

A human layer is seen in the collaboration with the public to make drawings and thought fragments and also in the poems by poet and geologist Barbara Cumbers and poet and local historian Anna Robinson. The resulting book and exhibition is an exploration of the texture of a material, an experience, and a layering of human concepts of mapping and planning.

www.gaildickerson.com

